

XM radio is a service that I pay for. I chose to pay for the service due to the lack of quality Radio Stations in my area. I had one choice. Now I have over 100 choices anywhere in the continental U.S. What difference does it make to the NAB what I listen to on my XM radio. I pay for the service and if I want to know the traffic and weather conditions where I'm traveling, I should be able to tune in to the source of my choice to hear it. If I didn't have XM I wouldn't waste my time trying to find a station that happened to be airing the traffic and weather anyway. The NAB and their subscribers need to get with the program or get out of the way. Satellite radio is the future. They need to accept this and get on with it. Change is inevitable, thank goodness. If it wasn't for change where would we be?
